Business Problem

There is a problem for students who want to gain and develop their skills and are looking for courses that are suitable for them. They suffer from the large number of course sources and whether they are reliable or unreliable, and this increases student distraction

Business solution

The solution for these students who are looking for courses is to provide a website that collects for them all the courses related to Python, Excel, and website design that are highly rated, at a reasonable cost, and with high trust, so that the student can search for courses without worrying about whether they are wasting their time or not and without being distracted by the abundance of sources

Target users

Students who want to acquire skills in technological tools such as Excel, Python and Web Application
